DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS.

The Committee appointed to nominate candidates for Municipal Officers, by the Democratic Meeting held at the Old Court House on Tuesday evening, REPORT—

FOR MAYOR,
AMASA WALKER.

FOR ALDERMEN,

BENAJAH BRIGHAM, ISAAC HARRIS,
JEREMIAH BRIGGS, JOHN W. JAMES,
LARRA CRANE, ERENEZER STEVENS,
JAMES DENNISON, SIMON WILKINSON.

The Message will be found on our First Page. It is all that the sincere friends of the President could desire—firm, yet conciliatory—reiterating the opinions relative to the Sub-Treasury expressed at the commencement of the extra-session with unabated confidence, and giving a lucid view of the condition of our national affairs generally. The federalists will now be satisfied that Mr Van Buren cannot be intimidated by their shouts and temporary successes, but having formed his opinions upon the principles of truth and justice, he will be as constant in their maintenance as he is fearless in their expression.

Washington City, Dec. 4, 1837.

Both Houses of Congress met to-day at 12 o'clock, and contrary to the predictions of many, quorums were in attendance. Two hours of the morning were spent in congratulating, hand-shaking, profession-making—and it was pleasant to witness that good humor and good feeling prevailed.

When the House was called to order, one hundred and fifty-six members answered to their names. The ordinary resolutions preparatory to organization were adopted, after which old Mr Whittell, of Ohio, who is literally the workman of the House, and who, as chairman of the Committee on Private Claims, is entitled to the unlimited confidence he receives at the hands of all parties, attempted to induce members to go to work at once, but without success. A committee was appointed to wait on the President, and the House adjourned. We get the Message to-morrow, and as you will see it before this note can possibly reach you, I need not say one word concerning it.

In the Senate, the usual business of organization was disposed of, and then that body adjourned. Before it was called to order, there was a deal of joking and good natured jibing with the Hon. Silas Wright, on the part of the whigs. Mr Wright took all in good part, and told the gentlemen that their day of jubilee would soon be at an end. Every man was good natured and I never saw a session commenced in a happier mood.

The course and policy of the administration will remain unchanged, as I am told, come what may; and those who have supported it will be expected to rally to its aid. The late elections in the State of New York, do not appear to have dispirited the leaders of the party in Washington, and it is certain that they will go onward and pause not in their course. They say that the late elections were singularly unpropitious; but, they add, in the words of Lord Nelson at the battle of Cape St. Vincent, as he pressed the hand of one of the noblest captains of the British fleet, "This is too hot, Hardy, too long."

Col. Johnson came in for a good deal of railway before the Senate was called to order, and it must be said that the old soldier nobly and successfully parried the wit of his assailants.

The troubles and civil commotions in Canada, attract a good deal of notice among us, and the opposing combatants are rapidly gaining partisans. Four or five gentlemen from Lower Canada arrived in town on Friday, and it is reported, that they come among us to obtain the recognition of the Independence of Canada! The story is, undoubtedly, unfounded and idle. Until we get the Message, we shall not have anything like excitement, and my letter of to-day, from necessity, must be brief.

Yours very truly, C. S.

§ The miserable blackguards who published a hand-bill yesterday, abusing Mr HENSHAW, and several other gentlemen, because Mr H. received three-fourths of the votes cast for a candidate for the Mayoralty by the democratic meeting on Tuesday evening, fired their gun a little too soon; for Mr H. declined the nomination the moment he was apprised that it had been made. No man in the democratic ranks could command a larger vote than Mr H., would he consent to be run for the office; his eminent talents—extensive information, and honorable character, command the respect and confidence not only of his own party friends, but of all acquainted with him.

Linguistic.—The Germans have given the name of Linguistic to the science of Comparative Philology, which may be said to be a new science, when considered in relation to its present objects. By comparing different languages together, and by tracing each of them to its original source, it is expected that the relationship of different nations and branches of the human family to one another may be correctly ascertained. After this matter is ascertained, however, there is still another question to be solved, which relates to the particular part of the globe whence they all sprung. All such matters of speculation will answer to keep learned men out of idleness and mischief; but we do not believe that any very important or certain information will be derived from it. An acquaintance with our present condition, and its wants, is the most important knowledge.

Metempsychosis.—The doctrines of somnambulism, maintained by the Animal Magnetists seem to be but a modification of the Pythagorean doctrines of Metempsychosis or transmigration of souls. If one man has the power, as they assert, of infusing his spirit into the body of another person who is sleeping, one might live forever, by making it a practice, whenever he is old, of putting some young person to sleep—then entering into his body—and thus live life over again.

Death.—The great and pious emperor Marcus Aurelius thus philosophically reasons concerning the fear of death. "He who fears death, fears either to be deprived of all senses, or to experience other sensations. But if you no longer retain your own senses, you will no longer be subject to any pain or grief. If you have senses of a different nature, you will be a totally different being."

§ We know of no paper that is more vigilant in its defence of democracy than the Rhode Island Republican—its flag is always at the top of the staff.

The federalists are talking about their "fathers of the revolution." One of their fathers, about those days, was caught carrying chickens to the British while they lay in Philadelphia, and several other things about that time, while our "democratic fathers of the revolution" were out fighting for freedom.—Ohio Statesman.

The resignation of Capt. Thomas Ap Catesby Jones, as commander of the Exploring Expedition, is announced.

LATE FROM EUROPE.

CONSTANTINE TAKEN BY THE FRENCH.

Last evening the ship Mexican, Captain Leo, arrived from Malaga, bringing Madrid dates to the 25th October, and Malaga to the 3d November.

The taking of Constantine is confirmed by the following from the Malaga Official Bulletin:—

"To-day, by an official dispatch, news is received of the entrance of the French army into Constantine. The 47th regiment of the line took a principal part in the assault."—Malaga Bulletin Oct. 31st.

Spain.—The news from this country is not yet decisive of any result satisfactory to either the Queen or the Pretender. An account from Valencia of the 19th October speaks of "all the insurgents having retired to Cantaviija."

The news from Valladolid, of Oct. 22, is that Count Luchana, Commander in Chief, follows close upon the Pretender's faction, and deals out to them sundry blows, great and small.

Portugal.—The individuals made prisoners in the Charterist revolution, have been set at liberty.—The Cortes have decided in favor of a new constitution.

The Queen has conferred upon Viscount Das Antas and the Baron de Bomfim the title of Field Marshals, as a reward for their eminent services, in putting down the late revolutionary movements in Portugal.

On the 9th October the two officers above named, at the head of a part of their division, made a public entry into Oporto. It was a splendid affair.

Not having received our papers by the ship Mexican in time, we are indebted to the Journal of Commerce for the news by her.—New York Post.

FROM MEXICO.

The New York Star has received files of Mexican papers to Nov. 21, inclusive.

The report of the dissolution of Bustamante's cabinet is confirmed—a new cabinet is organized.

The cholera the latter part of October had extended from Central America into Cuila, frontier town of Chiapas, (Mexico) and caused great alarm. A sanitary cordon was established and a request laid before the Chamber of Deputies at Mexico Oct. 27, asking for appropriations to defray the expense of this precautionary measure. A communication on also from Guajuato approving of the supreme government.

Much of the time of the Chamber was occupied with discussing a bill relative to prohibiting the export of gold and silver.

The report of the Minister charged with the supervision of the national domain, makes the sum total twenty-one millions of piastres.

The yield of the gold, silver and copper mines for the year ending July 1, 1836, is 320,310 piastres.

Canada Affairs.—Yesterday's mail brought nothing further of a definite bearing, in relation to the events of the revolutionary conflict. The military movements in the provinces are indicative of hard knocks to come. On the 30th ult. 6000 stand of arms, with accoutrements complete, arrived at Montreal from Quebec. Two field-pieces and a supply of congrue rockets, and detachments of artillery, cavalry and light infantry, were despatched for Sorel the same day. These reinforcements with the troops already at Sorel, it is said, will form a pretty strong brigade.

§ We like the following extract from a London publication:—

"Modernisms.—It is the state of unfinished action which is understood in such phrases as 'the house is building,' and 'the house was building,' in which the action is taken abstractly, without attending to the agent. The Romans expressed the same ideas by means of the passive voice, domus edificatur, and domus edificabatur. Every language has its idioms, which pedants only would attempt to change. For some time past, 'the bridge is being built,' 'the tunnel is being excavated,' and other expressions of a like kind, have pained the eye and stunned the ear. Instead of 'the stone is falling,' and 'the man is dying,' we shall next be taught to say, 'the stone is being fallen,' and 'the man is being dead.' This incongruous conjunction of a present with a perfect participle, as if for the purpose of producing a confusion of tenses, is an absurdity of very modern origin, and has scarcely appeared in any respectable composition. Johnson writes to Boswell, 'my lives are reprinting;' Bolingbroke says that 'the nation had cried out loudly against the crime which it was committing;' and Milton, in his speech for the liberty of unlicensed printing, indignantly exclaims, 'yet these are the men cried out against for schematics and secretaries, as if, while the temple of the Lord was building, some cutting, some squaring the marble, &c. Viewing the present participle solely in its verbal state, it becomes assimilated to the infinitive, and is a general name for the whole class of continuous exertions.'"

"Oh woman's love's a fearful thing."—As I don't require any of your conversation just now, Mum, will you have the goodness to retire? enquired Mr Weller in a grave and steady voice. "Well, Mr Weller," said the buxom female, "I'm sure I only spoke to you out of kindness." "Werry likely, Mum," replied Mr Weller; "Samivel, show the lady out, and shut the door arter her." This hint was not lost upon the buxom female, for she at once left the room, and slammed the door behind her, upon which Mr Weller senior, falling back in his chair in a violent perspiration, said—"Sammy, if I was to stop here alone week; my boy, that ere 'oman 'ud marry me by force and violence afore it was over." "Wot, is she so werry fond on you?" enquired Sam. "Fond?" replied his father, "I can't keep her away from me. If I was locked up in a fire proof chest with a patent Brahmin, she'd find means to get at me, Sammy."

"Wot a thing it is to be sought after!" observed Sam, smiling. "I don't think I'd pride on it, Sammy," replied Mr Weller, poking the fire vehemently, 'tis a horrid situation. I'm actually drove out of 'ouse and home by it. The breath was scarcely out of your poor mother-in-law's body ven old 'oman sends me a pot of jam, and another pot of jelly, and another brews a blessed large jug of cannone tea, vich she brings in with her own hands." Mr Weller paused with an aspect of disgust, and looking round, added in a whisper, 'they was all widlers, Sammy, all on 'em,' 'cept the cannone tea ven, as was a single young lady of fifty-three.—Pickwick Papers.

The most complimentary and delicate effusion we have for a long time seen from a lady's pen, is the following picture of the French fair sex, drawn by an English sister yclep'd Mrs. Walker, in her book on "Female Beauty."

The women of France, considered generally, are the ugliest in Europe. Their forms are angular, swaggy, and arid; their skin of greenish brown, or olive hue; their hair of an opaque dirty looking black, and excessively coarse; their forehead low; the general configuration of the forehead, as observed by Count Stendhal, like that of the monkey; their eye brows compressed; their upper lip frequently covered with mustaches; and their voice rough.

Malibran.—The Independent of Brussels announces that a monument is about to be erected by M. De Beriot to the memory of Malibran Malibran, over her tomb in the cemetery of Laken, after the designs of M. Geefs, the sculptor and architect. It will consist of a rectangular chapel rising into a cupola, surmounted by a cross. A door of bronze, richly wrought in fretwork, will admit through the interstices of its ornament a view of the interior, discovering at the extremity a statue of white marble, representing the enchanting cantatrice as she appeared in life, in the fifth act of Norma. The chapel will be finished next summer, but the statue cannot be placed in it till the following year.

The School Committee, at their sitting on Tuesday, voted 12 to 6 to introduce the new system into the Wells School. There was a long debate. Messrs Bartlett, Austin and Maret, supported, and Mr Emerson opposed the order.

The resolves to make the Boylston and Wells Schools exclusively girls schools, and the Adams and Franklin for boys only, and to equalize the numbers in the ten grammar schools, also passed.

Dr Perry made a report fully exonerating the grammar masters from a rumored charge of having sold out as usurers for money.

Thomas Sherwin was unanimously chosen Master of the English High School, in place of Mr Miles, resigned. Advocate.

Foreign Literature, &c., &c.: L. E. L.—The pretty-pet-poetess, L. E. L., (Letitia E. Landon,) has gratified her numerous admirers by another charming production under the title of "Ethel Churchill," the scenes of which are laid during the reign of George the Second. The London Times comes out strong in its praise, pronouncing it far above the power of a woman to write! Such brilliant thoughts—fine poetry—acute wit—depth and feeling, are exhibited throughout, that it seems to astonish the redoubtable editor—but L. E. L., however successful she may have been in this work, had a previous reputation beyond the sunny praise of the moment. There is a rich poetic vein in every thing that comes from her pen, which cannot fail to be appreciated by the numerous admirers of her fascinating style. The work is not yet announced in this country.

Sheridan Knowles.—The rapidity with which this gentleman has thrown off his productions of late, seems to astonish every one. After Fanny Kemble appeared with such signal success in the Hunchback, anything from the pen of Mr Knowles was sure of being favorably received; and so fully was he aware of this fact that he fixed exorbitant prices to every successive production; but the Box Book of the two great patent Theatres not showing a sufficient income to justify such extravagant demands as those made by Mr Knowles, the late manager was forced to decline giving the prices demanded. With what success he gets along now we know not—but we see that he still keeps his pen in motion, having lately brought out a Comedy called "The Love Chase." Whether this will, or will not, add to his fame as a dramatic writer, we cannot say, having seen only a few short extracts from it, but we certainly think he has not gained anything by some of his late compositions. That he is a writer of uncommon power and beauty every one will admit—but there is such a thing as growing careless when one begins to reap such rapid and golden harvests as Mr Knowles has through his more studied works.

Trollope's New Work.—That inimitable old vixen—that proud old princess of absurdities and folies—Madame Trollope, is endeavoring to regain her lost fortune by scribbling for the Rag-Lane tribe, London. We perceive that a noted foreign publisher, willing to turn an honest penny, has put forth a work attributed to Trollope, called "The Vicar of Wrexhill," and in order to effectually make it "go down," as the saying is, the distinguished talents of Hervey have been put in requisition to illustrate each stirring scene. If this does not bring coppers into the "old woman's" side-pocket, we know what will. Another volume of trash and balderdash on America and the Americans for John Bull's voracious appetite—sick old gentleman as he is.

Dictionaria.—Original.—Narrative-writing.—A species of composition, which, in modern times, has degenerated into a mixture of the dramatic and didactic, in which the author is constantly tiring you with his dulness, by endeavouring to exhibit his genius.

Naturalization.—The art of manufacturing adult citizens for the state, without the expensive and tedious process of rearing them through the successive stages of infancy and youth.

Necessaries of Life.—All those luxuries to which we have become irredeemably habituated.

Neckerchief.—The yoke of fashion.

Negative of a proposition.—That side of a controverted doctrine which requires no arguments for its support—the burden of proof always resting with the affirmative.

Neighbors.—The guardians and managers of our private concerns.

Nervous-temperament.—The temperament of those who have weak bodies united with weak minds.

Neutral papers.—Those journals which bow the knee to all the Baals, and worship all the golden calves in the community.

Neutrality.—A state of selfish prudence—denominated impartiality.

Noblemen.—A man, whose merits, if he possesses any, are obscured by the lustre of his ancestry, and whose vices also are obscured by the glory of their reputation.

Notoriety.—A cloud of smoke and dust about one's person and countenance, which is often mistaken for a halo of glory.

Nostrum.—An aqueduct for tears—built out under the eyes as a support for spectacles. Likewise a musical instrument used in psalm singing in our country village churches. Likewise the handle to the face, which may be seized when you wish to turn an impertinent fellow out of doors.

Novelist.—A writer who benevolently supplies the world with false facts, which are wisely supposed to answer a better purpose than real ones.

Novice.—A practicable man.

Nullification.—A modern name for rebellion.

Nature.—That art which pervades the universe.

Tailors.—The question is often asked, why a tailor has been called the ninth part of a man—since our own observation proves to us that it would require no more of them to make a man, than of lawyers, doctors and politicians. We have reflected a little upon this subject, and have at length arrived at this conclusion: Every man naturally hates his creditor, who duns him for a debt which he cannot pay; and takes his revenge by reviling him and lessening him in the esteem of the world. Now it is notorious that there is no class of men in any community who are quite as much annoyed as tailors, with this description of debtors. There is no class of men who are obliged to dun so many arrogant, foul-mouthed and indigent fops, who take their revenge upon their creditors by slander and detraction. We have no doubt, that to this circumstance alone is owing the old saying that a "Tailor is but the ninth part of a man."

Theatrical.—We were both entertained and gratified, on Friday and Monday evenings, with the performances of the highly respected and talented George Jones and lady, whose powers of acting equal, if not surpass, those who have numbered twice their years in the profession; and we hope the expectations excited on their appearance, will be realized on Friday evening, when Mrs Jones appears as Bianca Fazio, the character in which she most excels; with a graceful figure, commanding air, and beautiful face, she cannot fail to attract the attention of all observers, and when you consider her youth, and that she has had but three months experience on the stage, we are led to suppose that in a few years she will stand unrivalled in the department she has chosen.

Of Mr Jones we cannot speak too highly; his respectability in private life, and his celebrity in the profession abroad, entitle him to a warm reception at home. His perfect delineations of Romeo and Hamlet, justify us in believing him equal to any characters he may undertake; and while speaking of his great mental powers, we may be excused for reverting to his unobtrusive manners and gentlemanly deportment, which should assure him the esteem and respect of all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. Let all those who wish to be gratified, entertained, and delighted, go on Friday evening and give them a bumper.

§ We were mistaken, yesterday, in saying that last night had been assigned for Mrs Jones benefit—it is this evening, when she will appear in her most popular character, Bianca Fazio by Mr Jones.

The Zions Herald states that a clergyman of this city has expressed a readiness to repair to Alton, and enter upon the duties of editor of the Alton Observer.

The Northampton Courier, in speaking of the Reports of the Committees upon articles exhibited at the late Fair, says—

"The model of an ingenious Power Printing Press, is put down by the Committee, as a Machine for Grinding Paint! Is it possible that intelligent Committee could not distinguish between a Printing Press and a Paint Pot?"

§ We learn from a friend in Lancaster, that the democrats in that place are not at all disheartened by the boasts of their enemies, but are determined to support the principles of democracy with renewed zeal.

The brig Sea Bird, arrived yesterday, having on board some of the passengers of the schooner Rhine, Capt Toney, which, it will be remembered, was wrecked on the 25th ult., 250 miles from Albuco; being bound from Boston to Pensacola, with provisions. The persons released by the S. B. speak of extreme suffering from a want of water and provisions, while remaining on the wreck, being for eleven days, partially without either.—New Orleans Adv., Nov. 28.

§ We understand that in consequence of the high prices of Hay and Grain, the proprietors of the Roxbury Coaches are obliged to raise the price of their tickets to meet their expenses, and therefore at present they can sell only ten for a dollar; but so soon as the price of horse feed falls they will sell them again at the old price, or as low as they can be afforded.
